

I do not object to having no code requirements for certain licenses, but the preposed change in requirements is both large and the timing quick. I would have much preferred to see the Extra set at 13WPM with the General at 5WPM and a Novice, or entry, class with no code requirement and limited HF segments. In my opinion the present tests made of exact "pool" questions do not require any expertise on the subjects asked, merely memorization of answers. Would you go to a doctor who got his license by taking such a test? I think not. There needs to be more quality at the expense of quantity in my opinion. Thank you for the opportunity to comment. I have been an Amateur for 35 years, an Extra since 1975.
